Location

Hotel Jackson is a minute's walk from the colourful main square, with its boardwalks and floodlit elkhorn arches (natural shedding only). It's overlooked by the Million Dollar Cowboy Bar, with saddles for bar stools, pool tables and a rampant grizzly lording it over all he surveys. As the night gets into its stride, locals dance the western swing to live country music. The Silver Dollar, named for over 2,000 early 20th-century coins embedded in the surface of the bar, offers similar old-style charm, but Jackson's contemporary face includes Bin 22, a wine bar where enthusiasts can browse 1,000 racked vintages, and Nikai, known for its excellent sushi.
