TheAdventurist
Your guide to everywhere.

The Best Restaurants in Jackson Hole Put the West on the Table

The valley between the Tetons takes its appetite seriously, with enough good cooking to fill the hours between adventures.

By Eric Barton | Nov. 1, 2026

Bin22

$$$ | MAP | WEBSITE | INSTAGRAM

The wine bottles come first at Bin22, rows of them in a shop that eventually gives way to communal tables and the more immediate question of what to eat. Settle in with a glass and let chef Adrian Castaneda handle the solids: a meatball blanketed in house-pulled mozzarella, patatas bravas with paprika aioli, octopus over mashed potatoes with 'nduja. Castaneda grew up in Jackson, learned dough-making from his father, and now cooks the sort of Spanish- and Italian-leaning food that encourages a table to order one more plate.

Best for: Wine, tapas, and a communal table