

One of my favorite things about these City Guides is seeing how much they change over the years with the ebb and flow of time. Stores open, stores close; cities develop and grow, and sometimes they even stay exactly the same, quaint as can be. Just over two years ago, Meagan Murtagh, blogger behind The Egg Out West, put together her Jackson Hole City Guide for us. Since then, a lot has changed in this great city and a lot has stayed the same but one thing is for sure, this valley city in Wyoming is a different place in the winter than it is in the summer. So today Meagan is back to share her Jackson Hole winter city guide! -Sabrina

The first time I laid eyes on The Grand Teton I thought for certain I was not in the United States. I had never before seen a mountain range so stunning anywhere in the West. I headed out for a quick trip right after college and seven years later, I'm still here. The lifestyle, the people, and the beauty tend to suck you in. In the last few years, we've seen a movement in both the food and entrepreneurial scenes, which really excites me. With the tax benefits of Wyoming, it is easy to see why small businesses are relocating here. The community truly is a special one with folks from all over the world. Giving, gracious, adventurous, and joyful are all words that come to mind when I think of the people who make up our mountain town. As a realtor, small business owner, and blogger, I absolutely love showing off this beautiful valley I call home.

The place to be during the winter months is in Teton Village, at the base of the legendary Jackson Hole Mountain Resort. Our slopes may be steep but there really is something for everyone, from novice skier to extreme athlete. The Après-Ski scene and local restaurants are top-notch and full of character. You really can't go wrong while visiting Jackson Hole in the winter!

Noon: When it's time to stop for lunch or a ski break, I recommend Osteria for a quick refuel. Their oven-fired pizzas are delicious...the Guido Sarducci is a must-try!

4 pm: Après time! My friends and I are usually famished after a hard day on the Hill. Our usual meeting place is The Spur with a big plate of nachos waiting for us. We also love The Q Roadhouse for their BBQ, fried pickles, and hand crafted brews. Okay, let's be honest, the pickles are usually just for me.
