7 Hot Chefs to Plan Your Next Vay-K Around

by Jenn Rice | January 13, 2016

Before you plan your next vay-k, we suggest that you check out this post first. We've created a list of smokin' hot (pun intended!) chefs that will bring you major eye candy on your next trip. From Playa del Carmen, Mexico, to Jackson, Wyoming, these talented chefs are spicing things up in the kitchen with both their looks and innovative dishes. You can thank us later!

Chef Joel Tate, Bodega

Add Bodega to your list next time you're in Jackson, Wyoming. Located in Teton Village, the establishment is a gas station-turned local bodega-style market that has everything you'll ever need post-day on the slopes — including a butcher shop! Chef Joel Tate, previously Executive Chef of Fine Dining Group's Rendezvous Bistro, is leading the new butcher program. In addition to meat, he offers quirky items like house-made bone marrow butter, bolognese sauce, macaroni and cheese sauce, and more.
