

This Wyoming hotel stands out like a weasel in a henhouse

CATHERINE DAWSON MARCH

JACKSON, WYO. — The Globe and Mail

Published Thursday, Jan. 14, 2016 1:03PM EST

Last updated Monday, Jan. 18, 2016 2:52PM EST

Eat in or eat out?

Eating out? Take the hotel car or taxi to Rendezvous Bistro – a delightfully casual and elegant French-American bistro in the south end of town. Beef tartare, for example, is served “Carter country style,” with potato chips, a yard egg and capers. And the fingerling potatoes are fried in duck fat, ooh la la. You’ll find the linen tablecloths covered in paper with crayon baskets among the tableware. That may sound a little Chuck E. Cheese, but it’s not. It’s welcoming and unpretentious, like the rest of the town.