

Forbes

Larry Olmsted
Contributor

LIFESTYLE 12/19/2014 @ 8:36AM

15 Most Memorable Restaurant Meals Of 2014

Salami for dessert? Yes please, at tapas bar cum wine store Bin 22 in Jackson, WY

Bin 22, Jackson, WY: The rare ski town eatery that is beloved by locals and visitors alike, Bin 22 has been a great addition to the already strong Jackson dining scene. It's basically a tapas bar in the back of a wine store, with both traditional Spanish standbys and funky, creative small plates, plus house made charcuterie. On the booze side, not only is there a big slate of by the glass wines and local craft beers, but you can buy any bottle(s) in the retail shop at regular wine store prices and have it with your meal, no markup or corkage, a big anomaly in the restaurant world. But the dish that blew my mind was the "chocolate salami" dessert, which looks so much like the craft made house cured meat that it is hard to believe it is sweet until you taste it.