

DEPARTURES

Why You Should Visit Jackson Hole in the Off-Season

Tread lightly—it's a sacred, magical place.

By Jenn Rice on October 12, 2020

Bin 22 is ideal for sharing a few bottles of wine with friends (the spot also serves as a bottle shop) and sampling a few small plates like the seasonal house-pulled mozzarella, octopus, and charcuterie. †

Sloshies (adult slushies) at Bodega are an important part of happy hour culture in these parts—be sure to grab one after your hike.

Teton Village is fairly sleepy right now which means you enjoy a full-on feast at Il Villaggio Osteria—an Italian eatery with a rustic countryside vibe. My staples here always include burrata, olives, guidò sarducci and morbido pizzas, bolognese, and spaghetti alla norma. I also prefer to drink my dessert here, as Osteria is home to one of the largest and most unique amaro collections out west. They've got all my favorites, like Montenegro and Nonino, but a quick chat with the server will bring some really interesting amaros your way. Restaurant fans will be pleased to hear that pizzas can be shipped nationwide via Goldbelly.