

Jennifer Kester Contributor

Forbes Travel Guide Contributor Group ©

Forbes Travel Guide

I am the vice president and executive editor of Forbes Travel Guide.

Savor French fare at The Bistro. THE CLOUDVEIL

The Restaurant

One problem that Dombroski says guests may encounter this summer is securing restaurant reservations, since many of the in-town spots fill up quickly.

Pathfinders are reaching out to guests before their stays to let them know if they want to dine at certain restaurants, they have to book by a certain time.

To accommodate fewer dining options, the Jackson hotel decided to keep its first-floor Bistro open for breakfast, lunch and dinner. The French-style restaurant also handles room service.

The Bistro is overseen by restaurateurs Gavin Fine and Roger Freedman of Jackson Hole's Fine Dining Restaurant Group. Here, they focus on seasonal French fare, from Grand Marnier French toast and eggs Benedict in the morning to steak au poivre and croque-madame at night. The eatery also offers a zinc bar, a fresh oyster bar and outdoor dining.