How a 35-Year-Old Seasonal Worker Feeds Two on $140K/Year in Jackson Hole, WY

7:34 p.m. Back at our apartment, I fire up the oven and stovetop, a luxury we haven't enjoyed in previous employee housing. We just want to eat something satisfying and easy. I wash, oil, and salt two sweet potatoes ($1.79 at Smith's, previously bought) and roast them in the oven, then butterfly and sauté two Thai-style chicken sausages from local company Bovine and Swine that I was gifted at work at the end of April
