It's the first and only hotel to touch Town Square.

Jackson Hole, Wyoming is a bit of a travel anomaly. The destination attracts down-to-earth nature lovers from around the world, thanks to vast and breathtaking mountain ranges, close wildlife encounters, and dozens of popular outdoor activities like fly fishing and mountain biking—but it's also home to some of the most expensive real estate in the country, attracting celebrities and billionaires in droves. Somehow, the city acts as a common denominator, drawing clientele from all walks of life, and accommodating them accordingly. For that reason, the hotel and resort offerings in the area are just as varied as its visitors. From upcycled motels and log cabins to ultra-luxe wellness resorts and spas, Jackson Hole has it all—except, ironically, a hotel in Town Square, at the epicenter of it all. Until now.

To complement the hotel, Rocky Mountain restaurateur Gavin Fine, of the Fine Dining Restaurant Group, even introduced a new high-end restaurant concept: The Bistro. The Bistro's menu will feature a raw bar, as well as a rotating menu of seasonally-inspired dishes, an extensive wine selection, and craft cocktails.
