

Jackson Hole News & Guide

New Fine Dining restaurant, The Bistro, will open quietly on Wednesday

By Jennifer Dorsey 3 hrs ago 0

Waffles are one of the breakfast items you'll find at the Fine Dining Restaurant Group's newest restaurant. In addition, the restaurant will also serve lunch and dinner, with a French-inspired menu.

With Wednesday's opening of the new Center Street hotel, The Cloudveil, also comes the debut of Fine Dining Restaurant Group's latest entrant on the valley's restaurant scene: The Bistro.

A splashier, official announcement of the 75-seat restaurant's opening is planned for next week, but The Bistro will serve lunch and dinner tomorrow and add breakfast on Thursday.

"We're kind of just opening quietly," Fine Dining communications director Kendra Alessandro said.

The Bistro's operations will integrate with the hotel's in a few ways. Fine Dining will provide room service and handle catering for private event spaces and rooftop gatherings. And visitors sitting in the hotel lobby will be able to order drinks and certain items from the restaurant menu.

The Bistro itself features a large U-shaped bar, and in addition to indoor tables, offers outside seating. Like Rendezvous Bistro, which closed this past spring after 20 years in business, it will have a raw bar. And the dinner menu retains some of the former restaurant's favorites — like the frisee salad and the chipotle corn — but is mostly new.

The French-inspired menus were developed through a team effort led by chef Jamie Perez and Roger Freedman, co-founder of Fine Dining.