

What's New In Jackson Hole For Ski Season

My longtime personal favorite escape, Jackson Hole Mountain Resort, has always enjoyed a reputation as one of the nation's best destination for expert skiers and snowboarders, thanks to its wealth of challenging and extreme terrain. It is also one of the top luxury ski vacation choices because of its broad assortment of top hotels and a vast list of restaurants, bars and great shopping. But this family-owned, world-class ski resort refused to rest on its laurels and, in the past two years, embarked on a major campaign to make it the go-to destination for all skiers. And as a result, Jackson may have dethroned Canada's Whistler/Blackcomb as the No. 1 overall ski resort in North America.

In Jackson itself, just off the town square, a noteworthy relatively new addition is Bin22, an ambitious upscale liquor store, gourmet grocery and wine bar serving a surprisingly extensive and tempting menu of fancy cheeses, salumi, charcuterie and mostly Spanish-style dishes such as charred baby octopus and dates with chorizo.
